Sites To Learn Something New Without Wasting Valuable Study Time On: Lapbooking is a social media service that allows users to create and share pictures on a digital canvas. The site empowers users to take pictures, add text and then combine them into one image. Lapbooking allows users to maintain an archive of their work, either in a Digital Gallery or "digital scrapbook." Users can also share their projects with friends through email, Facebook and Twitter.

Lapbooking is a free website where users can create projects using pop culture references from television shows, movies and music lyrics. Users can then choose to organize their pictures into one of many different themes, such as "A Song's Theme," "A Character From a Show" or "Season 1". Users can also upload pictures to the site and share their memories around the same theme.

Imgur is an image hosting service that allows users to upload images, which are then displayed on other Internet sites, blogs or forums. The images can be resized in numerous ways to suit different needs. The majority of the images are hosted without the original file being on Imgur's servers, meaning that Imgur does not need to host the content.

Imgur also has an active community on its site where users can share their pictures or buy pictures from others.

Stack Exchange is a question-and-answer website where people can ask and answer questions in a wide variety of academic fields. To date, there are more than 500,000 questions spanning over 40 topics. Users earn points when other users "like" or "accept" their contributions!

Users can vote on submissions they find useful or interesting.
